

Facilitator Reflection

Reflecting on Your First Student Union or Alliance Meeting

Congratulations. You have taken the first step toward building a Student Union or Alliance. Every first meeting is unique. Rather than asking whether everything went perfectly, consider what you learned about your students, your school, and the community you are beginning to build. The strongest organizations improve one conversation at a time.

1 What Went Well?

CELEBRATING SUCCESSES

- What moments made you smile?
- When did students seem most engaged?
- What surprised you?
- What strengths did you notice in your students?

2 What Did You Learn?

LOOKING MORE CLOSELY

- Which students seemed especially connected?
- Which students may need a personal follow-up?
- What did today's survey teach you?
- What themes or ideas emerged from student conversations?

3 Preparing for the Next Meeting

PLANNING FORWARD

- What should remain the same?
- What would you change?
- Which student ideas should shape the next meeting?
- Which students might be ready for a Leadership Team invitation?

4 One Commitment

Before our next meeting, one thing I will intentionally do to strengthen belonging is:

OPEN DECK
INSIGHT

Leadership communities are not built in a single meeting. They grow through hundreds of small conversations, thoughtful decisions, and relationships strengthened over time. Every meeting teaches us how to make the next one even better.

One year from now, what do I hope students remember about the community we are beginning to build?

BUILDING LEADERS. TOGETHER.
